

LIFE TO EAGLE WORKSHEET

Name _____.

My 18th birthday is _____.

In order to become an Eagle Scout, I must be a Life Scout for at least 6 months.

Six months before my 18th birthday is _____.

It's a wise thing to have some extra time. I'll give myself an extra 3 months.

Nine months before my 18th birthday is _____.

This date, or sooner is my goal to become a Life Scout if I am not already there.

When I become a Life Scout, I will have completed at least 11 merit badges. I must complete 10 more to become an Eagle. Hopefully I will have more than 11 by the time I am a Life Scout.

List here the merit badges you need to make it from Life to Eagle:

3.	_____	_____
4.	_____	_____
5.	_____	_____

10.	_____	_____

Some of the required merit badges have requirements that take three months. Personal Fitness, Personal Management and Family Life are examples of this time requirement. I must make sure I start these merit badges in plenty of time to get them completed.

I must fulfill a leadership role for at least 6 months while I am a Life Scout. I will run for election to a leadership position or apply for a non-elected position in plenty of time to fulfill this obligation.

I would like to have all my merit badges completed before I start working on my Eagle Scout service project, but I can start planning it at any time after I become a Life Scout. If I have to, I will work on merit badges at the same time as my Eagle Project.

An Eagle Scout project is a major task which has many steps. I have to propose my project and get four approval signatures. I have to plan the project. I have to recruit help.

I have to raise funds. I have to do paperwork. I have to submit the paperwork completed correctly.

Thankfully, I have great resources to help me in my project. My Scoutmaster and other adult leaders will help me all they can. Other Scouts in the troop will volunteer to help me finish my project.

When I become an Eagle Scout, I will have accomplished something that will benefit me for the rest of my life, and the things I have learned will benefit others as well. It will be a good reason to have a celebration otherwise known as an Eagle Scout Court of Honor.
